IMPORTANCE OF ....

The Birchei Yosef (494:12) quotes earlier Poskim that if one delivers a new Sefer Torah to a Shul on Shevuos, it is as if he has offered a timely Korban Mincha to Hashem. The Midrash (Shir HaShirim 1:9) derives from Shlomo HaMelech that on such an occasion, a Seudah is required to celebrate completion of the Torah. The Pri Chadash (426) rules that one may not recite Kiddush Levanah on Yom Tov because אין מערבין שמחה בשמחה - one may not mix one celebration on top of another. Similarly, Poskim bring the opinion of the Yerushalmi that one may not arrange a Purim Seudah in places that observe Shushan Purim where the 15th of Adar falls on Shabbos, because of אין מערבין. If so, how may the celebrations of completing a Sefer Torah be combined with the festivity of Yom Tov? The Pischei Teshuvah (669) asks, in light of אין מערבין, why do we complete the Torah every year on Simchas Torah, and mix celebrations? He answers that we see in Pesachim (71a) that where the Torah says והיית אך שמח to include the last night of Succos (i.e. Shemini Atzeres) in the mitzvah of שמחה, according to Rashi the inclusion does not extend to the following day. Thus, Shemini Atzeres (and Simchas Torah) are not obligated in שמחה, allowing completion of the Torah to be celebrated. The Gemara (Megilah 31a) states that originally, on Shevuos, the Torah was read from פרשת ראה which refers to 7 weeks of counting (שבעה שבועות תספר לך). The custom was later changed to read the Aseres HaDibros, which highlights Shevuos as זמן מתן תורתנו. As such, we would in fact be celebrating a תורה in both cases, which would certainly not cause a problem of בשמחה בשמחה. אין מערבין שמחה בשמחה.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK:

Where is a person obligated to recite a brocho over something, but he may choose (לכתחילה) from among different berachos?

ANSWER TO LAST WEEK:

(By when must a Daf Yomi learner complete the daily Daf?)

The Mishna Berurah (238:4-5) states that when one has accepted the obligation to learn a set amount every day, he has obligated himself in a נדר and therefore, if he was unable to learn it one day, he must stay up, even on short summer nights, to complete the daily portion. It is best to accept the obligation - בלי נדר.

DIN'S CORNER:

It is forbidden on Yom Tov to wash most of one's body, whether with cold water, hot water that was heated before Yom Tov, and certainly not with water heated on Yom Tov. One may use water heated before Yom Tov to wash oneself limb by limb. If one has children who need to be washed, and they are accustomed to wash every day, then their entire body may be washed with water heated for an otherwise permitted reason. (MB 511:9-12)

DID YOU KNOW THAT ....

The Gemara (Yuma 13a) states that although the Kohen Gadol must make an arrangement for a second wife on Yom Kippur, he may not be actually married to more than wife because of a Drasha from: ביתו ולא שני בתים. Would it be proper to assume from here, that although it is permitted מן התורה to marry two wives, it is nevertheless to be discouraged? Is this perhaps why there were relatively few recorded examples of such marriages? The Ben Ish Chai (321) says that since the Kohen Gadol's purpose on Yom Kippur was to ensure שלום between Hashem and the Bnei Yisroel, he was required to avoid any potential areas of strife, such as a household with two wives. For this reason, unless the husband could assure himself that the first wife truly did not mind, it was not a popular practice. Also, we see from the response of the גואל to Boaz that he did not wish to marry Rus because of: פן אשחית את נחלתי, which the Targum explains to mean that he did not wish to violate the condition that he had made when he married his wife, not to marry another. From here we see that the common practice was to include such a condition in every marriage. The Teshuvos HaRosh (33:1) was asked if such a condition was void as תנאי against the Torah, as it prevented marriage. He said no, since nothing prevented a man from divorcing one wife before marrying the other.

A Lesson Can Be Learned From:

The Noda B'Yehuda was the Rav in Prague and the Gadol HaDor but he felt compelled occasionally to place a ban on certain Chassidische Seforim that he believed to be heretic. The author of one such Sefer - יוסף יעקב יוסף, had a disciple who felt duty-bound to defend his teacher's honor by showing the Noda B'Yehuda that Chassidus added a necessary dimension to Yiddishkeit. He thereupon dressed himself in shabby clothing and presented himself to the Noda B'Yehuda one morning, begging him for food and lodging. The Rav attempted to dismiss him by suggesting that he get in touch with the Gabai of the Tzedaka committee, but the "beggar" insisted that he only wanted the Noda B'Yehuda to attend to him. The Rav explained to him that it was his job in Prague to sit and learn while it was the job of the Tzedaka committee to deal with matters of Chesed. The disciple replied: "Chazal tell us that before Hashem gave us the Torah, He went around and offered it to the other nations. Each turned it down because there was a mitzvah that would infringe upon their livelihood. However, they apparently were prepared to accept all the other mitzvos, including Talmud Torah, and presumably, Hashem would have agreed to give it to them. Yet because they were unwilling to obligate themselves in one or two mitzvos, they were precluded from receiving the Torah. So how can you say that your "job" is only to learn Torah and not do Chesed!"

P.S. All men are cordially invited to stay up and learn ליל שבועות in Shul. All families are invited to a Kiddush at the Sternbergs, 12:30 PM on the first day of Shevuos. Remember to make an Eruv Tavshilin!
